SCHOONMAKER AVENUE RESIDENT FIRES ON BURGLARS.

One Thought to be Severely Hurt Although he Together With His Two Confederates Succeeded in Making the Escape.

When Ed Hostettor the Schoonmaker avenue tailor returned home about 10:30 last night it was to find the house in possession of three negro burglars and after a desperate pistol duel in which one of the thieves is thought to have been desperately wounded, all succeeded in making their escape. Hostettor had been down street on business and returning home entered the shop for some purpose when he noticed through the back window a suspecious negro standing on the back porch He started upstairs to secure his revolver and had arrived at the top when a second negro who had gained an entrance to the house ran into the dining room. Hostettor followed and fired at the man when he cried out "My God Jim I'm shot" and fell through an open window near which he was standing, Hostettor left the man lay where he had fallen and made his way to the porch where a desperate hand to hand struggle followed, the negro trying to dash out Hostettor's brains with a chair.

The negro finally broke loose and ran. He was met by the third confederate and after a few shots had been exchanged both disappeared. The wounded negro also escaped in the excitement and darkness.

Investigation showed that the house had been thoroughly ransacked, from end to end but nothing of value was missing. Owing to the darkness Hostetter was unable to furnish any definite descriptions of the burglars.

Naylor who was on the rubber for the locals was in fine form and had the visitors "on the hip" all the way. Both Carr and Harvey who twirled for Gibsonton were marks for the home swattists the former being relieved in the fourth, after a total of ten runs were piled up. The other four were made in the following round. After that neither team could score as both pitchers settled down to business. The batting of Harris for Webster was easily the feature of the game he getting a total of three safties, two doubles and one single.

Last night a K. of P. Lodge was instituted at Charleroi with thirty-four charter members. Representatives from the various lodges in the Monongahela Valley including Brownsville, Fayette City, Belle Vernon, Monongahela, Donora and Monessen were present. The Monessen lodge had charge of the work, a representation of about twenty members being present. The affair took place in the Charleroi bank building and was witnessed by about three hundred people. Fifteen members were received by card. At 12 o'clock an elaborate banquet was served in Masonic Hall and it required three tables to seat all present. The hall was handsomely decorated for the occasion in both the lodge and national colors and presented a beautiful appearance. After the banquet the lodge work was resumed and it was nearly morning before it was finished.

The new Knights of Pythias Lodge at Charleroi starts off under the most favorable and prosperous circumstances and it is believed by all present that it will succeed and grow to be one of the strongest and best of its kind in the country as its present membership is composed of the best and most stalwart citizens in the town.

WOMAN HELD FOR COURT.

Convicted of Operating a Speak Easy and Selling "Medicine" Without License.

About half of the population of Wireton assembled at Squire Watkins court last night to witness what promised to be an interesting hearing. Saturday night a slavish row took place in the above named city and for a time things looked rather dangerous thereabouts. Officer Watts was called in time to prevent any blood shed. The trouble was between two women who gave their names as Maggie Panish and Helen Grnger. Each made complaint against the other for disorderly conduct for which charge they were fined $1.00 each and costs. Then Maggie was tried on a charge of selling liquor without a license and was held for court. Helen brought the suit and testified that she bought whisky from Maggie last Saturday for her mother at fifty cents a quart. Her mother she said was sick. The Squire thought the drug store was the proper place to buy medicine and gave his decision accordingly. The woman gave bail for her appearance.

HUCKSTERS ARE ARRESTED. PLEAD GUILTY AND FINED.

Three Men Tried Before Burgess for Selling Goods Without a License Contrary to the Provisions of a City Ordinance.

For violating a city ordinance and refusing to take out a hucksters license, three men W. W. Whitely, J. C Armstrong and A. E Huntsman representing a Toledo wholesale house were arrested last night and each fined $5 00 and costs amounting in all to $21.

The parties above mentioned have been making a business of coming to Monessen, soliciting orders and peddling out merchandise without first taking out a license as required by the borough ordinance. Early in the spring Whitely was brought before the Burgess and fined for the same offense, but yesterday he made his reappearance in company with the two other persons above named and proceeded to unload and deliver a car load of goods. Chief Woolsey arrested the men and last night they were arranged for a hearing. Mayor Shatterly read the ordinance and asked the parties whether or not they were guilty of any violation. They quibbled around a few minutes arguing the question pro and con and two of them finally plead guilty while the other denied the charge. He was then sworn and confessed that he too had "broken packages." They were then fined and given a receipt, but still refused to take out a license as required by the ordinance claiming they would appeal to court.

WANTED FOR SHOOTING.

A warrant, issued by Justice of the Peace Joseph Smith, of Smithton for the arrest of Mike and Peter Krock wanted on a charge of felonous shooting and wounding, was placed in the hands of local officers today. One of the men is now under arrest but the other is thought to be in hiding in or near the city. The shooting occured about August 15 at the Darr mines tipple when Sam Floro and his brother-in-law Russo Marino, were held up, it is alleged, by the Krocks.

Marino was wounded, but Floro, although fired at was not struck by the bullet.

MANSFIELD'S CAPILLARIS

A permanent cure for all Skin and Scalp diseases. Hundreds of thousands who have been cured by Capillaris are recommending it to suffering friends. Capillaris is beneficial to the Hair and Scalp. By using it one can keep the Scalp clean, cool and white, giving a perfect state of health and ensuring an abundance of luxuriant hair of natural color.

Chronic cases of Skin and Scalp diseases of five to forty years' standing, cured by Capillaris, prove, beyond all question of a doubt, that Capillaris has no equal for its wonderful curative qualities. Baby humors, terrible itching, bleeding, burning, torturing are invariably cured with less than one 50c bottle.

They Scorned Doctors.

The learned ladies in olden times took great comfort and pride in their skill in medicine. With true professional scorn they looked down upon the regular doctors as upon quacks. "For God's sake beware what medicines ye take of any fyssissyans of London. I shall never trust to them because of your father and my uncle, whose souls God assoil." So wrote a lady in conscious pride. She knew she could have saved the lives of her unfortunate relatives if she had only had a chance to dose them with some of her wonderful concoctions or to have put upon them some such plasters as those for which Dame Margery Paston was famous. Her husband sent for one of her plasters for the king's attorney, James Hobarst, who was suffering with an ache in his knee, and to whom Sir John Paston felt himself sentimentally indebted. "He is the man who brought you and me together," he wrote to Margery, "and I had leaver than £40 that ye could with your plaster part him and his pain."

Grease In Wool Fabrics.

Few persons realize when they put on woolen garments what a large amount of animal fats wool contains, for to the touch woolens are not greasy. In the big clothing shops where men's garments are cut, however, the floors around the tables where electric knives clip out the odd shaped pieces soon become as slippery as though they were waxed for a dance.

"Why do you wax the floors—to keep the fabrics clean?" is a common query from visitors.

But the clothing cutters explain that this accumulation of grease comes from the friction of wool cloth over the wood. The wood's pores soon become so charged with it that they feel greasy to the touch, and even the harder woods in the cutting tables absorb from the woolen fibers so much of the animal fat that to all appearances they might be in steady use in the rendering department of an abattoir.—New York Press.

Are Ministers' Sons Bad?

A bishop marked the names of those whom he deemed worthy of remembrance for some service performed in religion or politics or literature or science or art or commerce or philanthropy or warefare, or some other aspects of the various life of the nation. Of such names he found 1,270 who were the children of clergymen or ministers, taking no account of those who were grandchildren of clergymen or more remote descendants. Of the children of lawyers, there were 510, and of doctors 350. The sons of clergymen who became themselves clergymen were 350. He further asserts that the superiority which the clergy enjoy in respect to their children to the other professions; lies beyond dispute. The superiority has been not of numbers only, but of degree. From clerical homes have sprung more distinguished sons than from the homes of any secular profession. -Leslie's Weekly.

A Funny Eagle.

A Russian grand duke was once the guest of a German prince. It was early in the last century. In Russia the imperial double headed eagle is to be seen everywhere and on everything throughout the empire- stamped, painted, embroidered or sculptured. At that period the education of grand dukes was somewhat limited. This grand duke went out shooting in Germany and, among other things, shot a large bird. He asked an experienced huntsman who accompanied him what the bird was. "An eagle, your highness," was the answer. The grand duke turned on him in an irritated way. "How can it be an eagle," he asked, "when it has only one head?"

Shadeless Forests.

Large tracts of dense forests in Australia are practically shadeless. Many kinds of trees in that strange country turn their edges instead of the flat surface of the leaves to the sun, and thus one may stand under a tree of enormous size and be as fully exposed to the sun as though he were in the open plain. Travel through these forests is said to be exceedingly arduous work, as the trees, while they do not cut off the sun, prevent the breeze from reaching the ground, and thus the traveler experiences a stifling heat.

Use For Spoiled Beer.

"There is no need," said a brewer, "for us to throw away beer that has turned sour, nor is there any need for us to try to doctor it up. We have a ready sale for our spoiled beer among cement makers. Don't think from this that cement makers have a morbid taste for sour beer. Nothing of the kind. They use this beer in making cement for leather joints. It takes the place of acid, being cheaper and yet just as good."

Not an Impostor.

A proud young father telegraphed the news of his new responsibility to his brother in this fashion: "A handsome boy has come to my house and claims to be your nephew. We are doing our best to give him a proper welcome." The brother, however, failed to see the point and replied: "I have not got a nephew. The young man is an impostor."

Natural History.

"Mamma, what are twins?" asked little Bobby.

"Oh, I know," chimed in Dorothy, with all the superiority of an elder sister. "Twins is two babies just the same age, three is triplets, four is quadruplets, and five is centipedes."—Harper's Weekly.

A Comprehensive Verdict.

A child in an English town was killed by a steam atomizing apparatus falling on it. The coroner's jury brought in the following curious verdict: "Death resulted from shock following bronchitis and whooping cough, caused through the shaking of the house by the firing of a gun at the government proof butts on the Pulmstead marshes."

AN EXPLANATION

[Original.]

A lady sat in a train on her way home after a summer outing. Her attire was half mourning and a bit of white ruching in her bonnet marked her for a widow. A gentleman sitting near her arose and, approaching her, raised his hat and said:

"Mrs. Sands."

The lady looked up and met a kindly glance with one the reverse of kindliness: it was icy cold.

"You have forgotten me?" said the man.

"Not at all. I have good reason to remember Ogden Rockwell."

The man stood, evidently undecided whether to return to his seat or remain and prolong the interview. The lady removed a bag from the vacant seat beside her, though she did not ask him to be seated. He sat on the arm instead.

"A great deal has passed since we last met," he said.

"I remember the circumstance very well. It was a week before my wedding. You took it upon yourself to give me advice."

"The scene is equally vivid to me. I remember some things I said to you, but if I advised you I have forgotten it."

"At that meeting, or rather parting, you told me that if I married Laurence Sands I would regret it. I did not believe that you would aid in any regret a wife might feel in her husband's weakness."

"Nor did I dream that fate would make it my duty to expose that weakness. As cashier I was responsible for any leak in the funds of the bank."

"You could have screened him for the sake of the woman you had professed to love."

"Hanford was suspected of having taken the money. Would you have had me sacrifice him?"

To this there was no reply.

"Granting," the man went on, "that there was no matter of duty or justice, would you expect me to shield a man who had taken away from me all that made the world attractive to me?"

"You struck through him the woman whom you say was all that might have made the world attractive to you."

There was a brief pause at the end of which the man said:

"I asked what you would have expected."

"I would only expect a man of wonderful nobility of soul to shield a rival."

"You would put it better if you said, 'Only a cur would fail to shield a rival when the woman they both loved was to suffer.'"

She looked up at him inquiringly.

"My part in the exposure was what hurt me," he added. "That I could not help, though it wounded you."

"Why was the exposure necessary when there was a way out of the matter, as is evident from the fact that Laurence was not prosecuted?"

"It was known to the officers of the bank that a considerable sum of money had disappeared. As I have said, Hanford was suspected. The real culprit must at least be known."

The woman bent her head. The discussion of the matter was terribly painful, even though it had occurred five years before. She put her handkerchief to her eyes and wept. Then, drying her tears, she said:

"There is one and only one feature of the case on which I love to dwell. That is the noble act of Laurence's friend, Edward Horton, who paid the indebtedness and saved Laurence from prison."

The man dropped into the vacant seat. When he did so he was too absorbed in his thoughts to be conscious of the act. At the end of a brief silence he said:

"You were misinformed as to Horton's part in the matter. Horton was implicated in the embezzlement and threw the whole blame on your husband."

The lady turned in astonishment. "Horton implicated! Horton threw the blame on Laurence!"

"Horton, not I, was responsible for the matter coming out."

"Why, then," she asked indignantly, "was I led to believe that Horton furnished the means to save Laurence? From the first I was deceived—deceived by everybody, by you, from whom I might have expected"—

"You were Laurence Sands' wife."

"Was this a reason why I should be deceived as to the person who befriended him?"

"Yes."

"Will you explain?"

"The person who furnished the means to make good the deficit did so on the condition that some one should stand in his place to you as the donor. Horton, as Laurence's friend, made an excellent substitute and, being implicated, could be compelled to accept the part."

"Why did the donor desire to hide his noble act under the cloak of a thief and a traitor to his bosom friend?"

"Because he was a man and you were a married woman."

"Well?"

"He loved you."

She sat staring at him, her eyes seemingly growing larger and larger.

"You?"

"I."

Even the rattle of the train was not sufficient to hide the words both would have spoken. There were no words. He felt a hand on his and saw tears starting from the eyes of the woman who had so long supposed he had wronged her, while really he had saved her unutterable suffering.

A cure endorsed by thousands.
Read an old man's tribute.

Sidney Justus, fruit dealer, of Mentor, Ohio, says: "I was cured by Doan's Kidney Pills of a severe case of kidney trouble of eight or ten years' standing. I suffered the most severe backache and other pains in the region of the kidneys. These were especially severe when stooping to lift anything, and often I could hardly straighten my back. The aching was bad in the daytime, but just as bad at night, and I was always lame in the morning. I was bothered with rheumatic pains and dropsical swelling of the feet. The urinary passages were painful, and the secretions were discolored and so free that often I had to rise at night. I felt tired all day. Half a box served to relieve me, and three boxes effected a permanent cure."

PAID FOR THEIR FUN.

Chief Woolsey Breaks up a Little Shooting Bee and the Shooters are Both Fined.

Frank Dominico and Luedo Droboter no two foreigners were arrested by Chief of Police Woolsey Sunday on a charge of reckless shooting in the borough and disorderly conduct. When found the men were prowling along the river bank shooting things up in great style and as the chief thought they might probably injure themselves they were taken in tow. They spent the night in the cooler and yesterday morning were given a hearing before Mayor Shatterly.

The men stated that they were just out trying their new revolver, that not a bit of harm had been meant and all that kind of stuff but it didn't go with his honor, not much. The men were informed that they had broken the law in several places and that as a result they would have to part with $15 and costs each.

The coin and the two gents from the other side of the "big pond" parted and they left the mayor's presence poorer but wiser men. Henceforth when they buy a new gun they will no doubt dispense with trying it out or at least go outside of the borough to do it.

Great Men's Childhood.

"Many great men," said a psychologist, "gave signs of greatness even in their childhood. Mozart at the age of five composed a piece of music so difficult that his father, a professional musician, had some trouble in playing it.

"Macaulay before he was eight wrote the 'Compendium of Universal History, Being an Account of the Leading Events From the Creation Down to the Present Century.'

"Hartley at seven wrote a long and abstruse essay on the 'Nature of Man.' Bacon at nine finished a work on philosophy. Milton at twelve wrote two epics.

"On the other hand, Goethe, Steele, Dr. Johnson, Wagner, Voltaire, Tennyson, Poe and Fenimore Cooper were deemed stupid in their childhood."

Bitter Jerrold.

Among the sayings attributed to Douglas Jerrold is a very bitter one he applied to Mark Lemon, then editor of Punch. Lemon was deeply attached to Dickens and showed it in a very open fashion, which perhaps aroused the great satirist's jealousy. At all events, as Jerrold was walking out one day with Lemon and another friend, and Dickens with several more behind them, Lemon suddenly dropped away and turned back. "What has become of Punch?" asked Jerrold's companion. "Did you hear Dickens whistle?" was the cynical reply. "Dickens pays the dog tax for Lemon."

Liberty, Equality, Fraternity.

The French philosopher M. Le Bon, commenting on the motto of the revolution, "Liberty, Equality and Fraternity," declared that the real difference between the French and the British lay in the fact that the French were enamored of equality and cared little for liberty, while the British insisted on liberty and never gave a thought to equality. And when some one quoted this to Rudyard Kipling he instantly added his own comment to the effect that what the American really preferred was fraternity. "He is a good fellow himself, and he expects you to be one."

Convinced.

Mr. Spongely (slightly related)—Splendid! Magnificent! Do you know, Uncle Eli, I believe I shall never get tired of seeing the sun set behind that hill! Uncle Eli—That's what me an' mother's beginnin' to think.—Puck.

AZTEC ARCHITECTURE.

Wonderful Endurance of the Old Mexican Buildings.

The Mexicans or the Aztec Indians can give the people of the United States lessons in architecture and in solid construction of buildings. There are buildings standing today in the City of Mexico that have stood for three centuries and are in an excellent state of preservation. There is not a frame building in the city. There are a few adobe, but most all are stone, brick or cement. There is a brick building down in the old part of the town that was erected prior to 1450.

It shows that so long ago as that the Indians were experts in the manufacture of bricks. But probably 80 per cent of all the buildings are made of concrete cement. Cement and concrete have been used successfully in Mexico for 500 years, and all the cathedrals and churches are of that material. On the line of the Vera Cruz Pacific can be seen the ruins of Toro Bravo, where there are evidences of a city ruined centuries ago. There are some twenty pyramids of solid cement which must have been erected over 500 years ago. One of these pyramids is 170 feet in height, and on the summit rests a cement ledge thirty feet in diameter. This, as well as others, is of filigree work and carved statuary.

Near this stands another of white limestone, built in four terraces, with carvings and ornamentations which would put to shame the modern American sculptor. It has stood all these centuries, yet the limestone is much easier broken than the cement. Think of a town of almost 400,000 persons, and the fire record is three in one year. The inside walls of many of the buildings are as much as six feet through, and all buildings are built around courts. There is no provision in any of them for fires, and at the present time small coal oil stoves are selling in the city for $20 the same that sell for $3 in the states. The floors are of stone, the ceilings of filigree cement, the walls of coarse plaster and almost without exception hand painted. The architecture on many buildings in the republic shows that the Indian of centuries ago was ahead of the modern builder of today.—Hobart News-Republican.

REFRIGERATOR RULES.

Use clean, flat dishes to hold whatever is on the lower shelves.

Buy your ice in pieces as large as can be accommodated. This is much more economical than to buy small ones.

Be careful not to fill dishes too full so that they will spill over. If anything is spilled, don't fail to wipe it up immediately.

Pack the ice well together and do not wrap it in paper or cloths; instead keep the door of the ice chamber shut as much as possible.

Do not put food of any sort directly on the ice. If it is absolutely necessary to place it near the ice, see that it is in glass or porcelain.

Empty the refrigerator at least once a week; scrub the interior thoroughly then scald the ice chamber and drain pipe with boiling water in which a lump of soda has been dissolved. Follow this with clear boiling water, wipe dry and let it air for twenty minutes.
